

HOLMES EJECTED FROM BALL PARK

Norfolk Man Put Out on Order of President of Portsmouth Club.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Norfolk, Va., August 1.—Dr. H. N. Holmes, of this city, was ejected from Ball Park this afternoon during the course of the Norfolk-Portsmouth game by order of Charles T. Bland, president of the Portsmouth Club. Dr. Holmes, in company with a high constable George, was watching the game from the stands and rooting for Norfolk. Mr. Bland, who was sitting behind him, became angered at their remarks and threatened to have them ejected if they persisted in rooting for the Norfolk club. The Norfolk man continued his remarks and was put out the park by a policeman at Mr. Bland's order.

Dr. Holmes declared that he used no abusive, insulting or profane language and was unjustly put out of the park. He was many times ordered to hear out his statement and declared he will at once institute legal proceedings.

voters of the Democratic party to join with the Republicans at the polls.

Dislike Radicalism.

"I know that in this wide country there are many who call themselves Democrats, who view with the same aversion that we Republicans do, the radical propositions of change in our form of government that are recklessly advanced to satisfy what is supposed to be popular clamor," said the President.

"They are men who revere the Constitution and the institutions of their government with all the love and respect that we could possibly have, men who deplore disturbance in business conditions, and are learning for that reason from the economic situation which is essential to the enjoyment by the whole people of the great prosperity which the good crops and the present conditions ought to bring us."

"To them I appeal, as to all Republicans, to join us in an earnest effort to elect the political and economic revolution and business paralysis which Republican defeat will bring about. Such misfortune will fall most heavily on the wage earner. May we not hope that he will see what his real interest is, will understand the shallowness of attacks upon existing institutions and the doubtful promise of undefined benefit by undefined changes?"

The President had heard officially of his nomination at Chicago from the lips of Senator Elihu Root, of New York, chairman of the notification committee.

"Except that," he began, "as an approval of what I have done under its mandate and as an expression of my confidence that in a second administration I will serve the public well. The issues presented to the convention over which your chairman presided with such just and even hand, made a crisis in the party's life. A faction sought to force the party to violate its venerable and time-honored national tradition by entrusting the power of the presidency for more than two terms to one man, and that man, one whose recently avowed political views would have committed the party to radical proposals involving dangerous changes in our present constitutional form of representative government and our independent judiciary. This occasion is appropriate for the expression of profound gratitude at the victory for the right won at Chicago. By that victory, the Republican party was saved for future usefulness."

After reviewing the legislative enactments of the Republican party the President launched into a bitter attack upon "those responsible for the popular unrest" of the present day.

Started by sensational journalism and unjust and unprincipled "muck-raking," he said, "demagogues have seized the opportunity to inflame the public mind that they might turn peculiar conditions to their own advantage." In the formation of new parties, the President said, these men have promised the satisfaction of unrest by the application of a remedy.

It Means Socialism.

"In the ultimate analysis, I fear, the equal opportunity which these seek who proclaim the so-called social justice, involves a forced division of property, and that means socialism. I venture to say there is no national administration in which more real steps of progress have been taken than in the present one. But as for the millennium, a condition in which the rich are to be made reasonably poor and the poor reasonably rich by law, we are chasing a phantom; we are holding out to those whose unrest we fear, a prospect and a dream, a vision of the impossible.

"I do not say that the two gentlemen who now lead, one the Democratic party and the other the former Republicans who have left their party, in their attacks upon existing conditions, and in their attempts to satisfy the popular unrest by promises of radical changes, are consciously embracing socialism. The truth is that they do not offer any definite legislation or policy by which the happy conditions they promise are to be brought about, but if their promises mean anything, they lead directly toward the appropriation of what belongs to one man, to another."

"The truth is, my friends, both those who have left the Republican party under the inspiration of their present leader, and our old opponents, the Democrats, under their candidate, are going in a direction they do not definitely know, toward an end they cannot definitely describe, with but one clear and clear object and that is of acquiring power for their party by popular support through the promise of a change for the better."

These gentlemen proposed to reform the government, whose present defects, if any, are due to the failure of the people to devote as much time as is necessary to their political duties, by requiring a political activity by the people three times that which thus far the people have been willing to assume.

"But after we have changed all the governmental machinery so as to prevent instantaneous expression of the people in constitutional amendments, in statutes and in recall of public agents, what then?"

"Votes are not bread, constitutional amendments are not work, referendums do not pay rent or furnish clothing. Initiatives do not supply employment or relieve inequalities of condition or of opportunity. We still ought to have set before us the definite plans to bring on complete equality of opportunity and to abolish hardship and evil for humanity. We listen for them tonight."

On Recall of Judges.

The President discussed at some length the recall of judges and judicial decisions, and the proposals to forbid the use of injunctions to protect property against a secondary boycott and the use of juries in contempt proceedings brought to enforce decrees or orders. The recall of decisions he labeled the "grotesque proposition by the leader of former Republicans who have left their party."

"The Republican party," concluded the President, "stands for none of these innovations. It refused to make changes simply for the purpose of making a change, and cultivating something beneficial, and will take place. We favor the greatest good to the greatest number. We believe that we have made progress from the beginning to now and that the progress is to continue into the far future; that it is reasonable progress that experience has shown to be really useful and helpful, and from which there is no reaction to something worse. It is said that this is not an issue in the campaign; it seems to me it is the supreme issue."

Root's Address.

"Your title to the nomination is as clear and unimpeachable as the title of any candidate since political conventions began."

That was the keynote of Senator Elihu Root's address to President Taft. "The committee of notification," said Senator Root, "here present, has the honor to advise you formally that on the twenty-second day of June last, you were regularly and duly nominated by the national convention of the Republican party, to be the Republican candidate

Leads New York Insurgents

Not to be outdone by the Republicans, the Democrats of New York State, at least a goodly portion of them, have decided to break from the party and start one of their own. The name of the new party will be the New York State Democracy, and the leader of the movement is State Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt. The purpose of the movement is to provide a means by which Independent Democrats, resentful of the domination of State politics by Tammany Hall, may express their disapprobation of the leadership of Charles F. Murphy and Governor Dix. They will put a full State ticket in the field this fall.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

By Gus Malbert.

Manager Steve Griffin announced last night that it would be neither Strain or Busey to-day against the Shipbuilders. Since Busey finished the game, striking out two batters, if Strain warms up in any kind of shape he will be called upon to hand the visitors their second dose of medicine. In this event, Busey and Perryman or Ayers will be the combination to make the series complete.

The fact that Petersburg won yesterday sends Roanoke further down the ladder and closer to the Colts. Every little loss to Roanoke means better chances for Cliff and his men. Petersburg is the attraction here the end of next week, and while we will treat them in a far more hospitable manner and with greater consideration than they gave to the Colts during the recent visit, it would be a good bet that Richmond will take three out of the four scheduled games.

"Boys' Day" at the lot was a screaming success. Upwards of 500 of the youngsters availed themselves of the opportunity to see the game as the guests of the management. It was their routing as much as anything else which sent Dutch Revelle skyward in the seventh and gave Richmond the game. The management would make no mistake to name each Thursday "Boys' Day."

Ed Griffin, one of the baseball writers of Washington, is unwilling to give Ray Morgan credit for anything which he does. Because the boy has not been for President for the term beginning March 4, 1912.

"For the second time in the history of the Republican party apart of the delegates have refused to be bound by the action of the convention. Now, as on the former occasion, the irreconcilable minority declares its intention to support either your Democratic opponent or a third candidate. The reason assigned for this course is dissatisfaction with the decision of certain contests in the making up of the temporary roll of the convention. Those contests were decided by the tribunal upon which the law that has governed the Republican party for more than forty years imposed the duty of deciding such contests."

"So long as those decisions were made honestly and in good faith all persons were bound to accept them as conclusive in the making up of the temporary roll of the convention, and neither in the facts and arguments presented before the national committee, the committee on credentials and the convention itself, nor otherwise, does there appear just ground for impeaching the honest and good faith of the committee's decisions. Both the making up of the temporary roll, and the rights accorded to the persons upon that roll, whose seats were contested, were in accordance with the long established and unquestioned rules of law governing the party and founded upon justice and common sense. Your title to the nomination is as clear and unimpeachable as the title of any candidate of any party since political conventions began."

Stands for Principles.

"Your selection has a broader basis than a mere expression of choice between different party leaders representing the same ideas. You have been nominated because you stand prominently for certain fixed and essential principles which the Republican party maintains. You believe in preserving the constitutional government of the United States. You believe in the rule of law rather than the rule of men. You realize that the only safety for nations, as for individuals, is to establish and abide by declared principles of action. You are in sympathy with the great practical rules of right conduct that the American people have set up for their own guidance and self-restraint in the limitations upon governmental and official power essential to the preservation of liberty and justice. You know that to sweep away those who rule of self-restraint would not be progress but decadence. You know that the great declarations of principle in our Constitution cannot be made an effective guide to conduct in any other way than by judicial judgment upon attempts to violate them, and you maintain the independence, dignity and authority of the courts of the United States. You are for progress along all the lines of national development, but for progress which still preserves the good we already have and holds fast to those essential elements of American institutions which have made our country prosperous and great and hitting at a .300 clip in the last two or three games, he finds fault. He is hitting far above the club, and without him at second the Nationals would be considerably lower in the percentage column. Grillo, never wanted Morgan to get a chance, and since he has made good in spite of the scribes' predictions, it hurts his pride. Griffith is not going to bench Morgan, because if he did the Washington fans would raise a howl which would be heard across the continent.

The Nationals won yesterday while the Red Sox were losing, which puts the Nationals considerably closer. If this keeps up a day or two, Washington will come home winners and at the top of the heap. The local magnates have shown wisdom in posting the results of the Tiger-National games at the park. The crowd likes it, and as Washington has a number of friends here, interest is keen.

Pitcher Eby came into camp without much warning and without the teething of horns, but he looks rather impressive in the box. Though obviously nervous yesterday during the time he worked, he acted like a regular, and Griffin would do a mighty unwise thing to turn him loose. He comes from Washington and belongs to the Washington club, but if he can keep up the sale he set during his short tryout yesterday he will win some games for the Colts. His chief fault was wildness, and that is accounted for because he hasn't worked any this season except tossing them up in batting practice.

free. You represent the spirit of kindly consideration by every American citizen towards all its fellows, respect for the right of advance opinion, peaceable methods of settling differences—the spirit and method which make ordered and peaceful self-government possible, as distinguished from intolerance and hatred and violence.

"In respect of all these things our country's institutions from many sides, it is your high privilege to be the standard-bearer for the cause in which you believe; and in that cause of peace and justice and liberty the millions of your countrymen who believe as you do will stand with you, and the struggle for constitutional freedom will support you."

SCHOOL PROSPECTS GOOD IN HIGHLAND COUNTY

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Monterey, Va., August 1.—The county school board of Highland met in annual session yesterday. Gratian Payne, superintendent of schools, presiding. The annual settlement with the treasurer showed a satisfactory and healthy financial condition of school work in the county, each district having a surplus with which to begin the new scholastic year.

By agreement of two of the three districts the Monterey High School was converted into a county high school with a four-year course of study, thus opening its doors to pupils of the whole county, lengthening the term and providing another teacher in the high school department. Since graduates of the four-year schools are entitled to teach, it will enable the school board to secure more home talent in providing teachers for the schools of the county, and presents an encouraging outlook to those interested in rural education in the county.

The district board has re-elected the same teachers who composed the faculty last year, one to be supplied to meet the conditions of the change above referred to. The faculty is as follows: Robert Sterrett, principal; Miss Lenny, assistant; Miss Kate Gibson, grammar grade; Misses Mollie Manzy and Miss Mattie Eagle, primary.

MOTOR-BOAT RACE IS WON BY DREAM

Hamilton, Bermuda, August 1.—The motor boat race from Philadelphia to Bermuda, which started at 12:15 P. M. Saturday last, ended this evening, when the Kathemba crossed the finish line shortly after 6 o'clock.

The Dream, the smaller of the two contestants, crossed the line off St. David's Head, at 8:44 on last evening. Both boats experienced heavy gales and a rough passage over the course of 713 miles.

The Dream is a forty-foot boat, owned by Charles L. Lagen, of the Yachtmen's Club. The elapsed time of the Dream, allowing for the difference in time between Bermuda and Philadelphia, was 106 hours 6 minutes and 5 seconds. The Kathemba crossed the finish line at 6:02 this evening. Her elapsed time was 120 hours 30 minutes. The Dream had a time allowance of 14 hours 14 minutes and 24 seconds. She therefore wins the Bermuda challenge cup and the $1,000 prize by nearly seven hours.
